1. PURPOSE. The purpose of this manual is to furnish provost marshals and military police a guide for the preparation of forms needed to facilitate operations and to record necessary statistics. Although intended primarily to assist the provost marshals (frequently called directors of security and intelligence) of posts, camps, and stations, the system of records and forms outlined herein may be readily adapted to the needs of provost marshals of tactical units, as well as the provost marshals of towns and other territorial jurisdictions, both in the zone of the interior and in theaters of operations.

2. ADMINISTRATIVE RECORDS. Each organization maintains its own administrative records. As this manual is concerned only with distinctive military police records, no attempt has been made here to discuss normal administrative records.

3. ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF MILITARY POLICE RECORD SYSTEM. a. The actual number of forms required at any individual provost marshal's office will depend largely upon the military and civil population of the area in which the military police operate. The basic elements of a record system, outlined in b below, may be adjusted to meet local requirements.

b. The maintenance of certain forms is considered necessary to the efficient organization of the provost marshal's office. These forms cover records of complaints, investigations, and arrests; wanted and missing persons; confinement of prisoners; lost, stolen, found, or recovered property; traffic violations and accidents; and records and reports of activities. The basic forms are numbered; supplemental forms are lettered (see par. 24).

c. The provost marshal must avoid any tendency to increase personnel and accumulate unessential records and office equipment. He must organize his office so as to maintain only those records which are necessary to the proper execution of his mission.

d. The following general principles must be constantly borne in mind:

(1) Do not maintain complicated summaries unless the information summarized will be used. Instead, prepare such summaries from basic records upon request.

(2) When compiling statistical data, consider the use of samples, spot counts, and similar short cuts.

(3) Avoid duplication of information.

e. The files of each unit are established to meet local requirements. In all cases, however, the files should be simple. Safeguards should be introduced to assure the proper follow-up of all pending or incomplete records. The system of files and cross-indexes outlined in this manual is only one method, and may be changed in accordance with local requirements.

f. Military police forms and records are retained and disposed of as prescribed in AR 345-10.

RECORDS

4. COMPLAINT AND INVESTIGATION REPORTS. a. General. A record is made of all offenses and incidents referred to the military police which require investigation and/or other action.

b. Complaint Report. The Complaint Report (Form No. 1) is the initial and control record of each complaint. A report is made out in duplicate immediately upon receipt of the complaint. Each report is given a case number. The original is retained for file; the duplicate copy is turned over to the individual investigating the complaint. The action of the investigator is recorded on the Investigation Report (Form No. 26).

c. Filling Out Complaint Report. The form must contain a complete initial record of the facts of the case, including as much of the following information as can be secured from the victim or complainant.

DESCRIPTION OF SUSPECT OR PERSON WANTED:

Why suspected or wanted STOLE SILVERWARE FROM PEE DEE TAVERN

(1) Persons attacked. Show the number of victims, their sex and race, whether adults or juveniles and, as far as possible, their assignment or occupation. This is valuable information because some offenders tend to specialize in offenses against certain racial, occupational, or age groups.

(2) Property attacked. Indicate the type of premises on which the offense was committed, such as barracks, army exchange, gasoline station, etc. If a building is used for several different purposes, indicate first the purpose for which the particular room entered is used and after that the general use of the building.

(3) Method of attack. Show the general manner in which the crime was committed. In a case of burglary, state the location of the door or window by which entrance was gained. In a robbery case, indicate whether the victim was threatened, strong-armed, slugged, etc. In a larceny case, specify the place from which the property was stolen, such as desk, cash register, clothesline, porch, etc., and the means of attack, such as carrying away, driving away, shoplifting, etc. Show briefly any instruments, tools, or devices used in attacking persons or property. In burglary cases, all tools should be specifically described, showing for instance, the size of a jimmy or a drill; in robbery cases, give the best possible description of the weapon used.

(4) Object of attack. In crimes against property, show the specific type of property taken, such as money, jewelry, clothing, or other object. In crimes against the person, the object of attack is expressed in terms of the motive; for example, jealousy over promotion, illicit love affair, robbery, hijacking, battle, quarrel, etc.

d. Investigation Report. The report of the investigator is recorded on Form No. 26 (Investigation Report), a copy of which is attached to the Complaint Report (Form No. 1) and filed in the case file. (See par. 8.)

(1) Synopsis. The synopsis is a concise summary of the material facts set forth in the details of the report. To prepare a synopsis, the case is reviewed from beginning to end, the essential elements are selected, and brief notes made of the important facts. From these notes the whole report is condensed into one or more paragraphs in the same sequence as the details. The reader must be able, by reading the synopsis, to get a general picture of the case, and must be able to verify the synopsis by the detailed report. A synopsis should not contain addresses, descriptions, and other details. No reference is made in the synopsis to originating data, or to information upon which the investigation is predicated. More than one page may be used for a synopsis of an extensive report.

(2) Details. The details are set forth on standard letter paper and attached to the Investigation Report.

(3) Statement Sheets. Statements of witnesses and suspects are recorded on Statement Sheets (Form No. 27) and attached to the Investigation Report.

e. Supplementary investigation report. Further information concerning "suspended" cases is recorded in additional Investigation Reports and attached to the initial Investigation Report. All Investigation Reports pertaining to the same case carry the same case number. The military policeman originally assigned the investigation normally completes it for the provost marshal. By means of a current file a check is kept of cases pending. Pertinent facts subsequently learned by other members of the organization are reported to the person assigned the case.

5. FOLLOW-UP PROCEDURE. An established procedure for the follow-up of pending cases is usually necessary. This may be accomplished through the use of a simple "tickler" or "suspense date" file. The system must be simple but adequate to serve the purpose.

d. Apprehension or surrender of absentees. Absentees may either surrender or be apprehended. Whenever the military police are involved in the apprehension or surrender, their records should be complete.

made with civil police authorities to secure a copy of the report of arrest of a member of the military establishment. The military police will execute the Report of Arrest (Form No. 3) from information received from the civil police. The provost marshal may forward this information to the organization commander of the offender by Report of Delinquency (Form No. 6).

f. Arrest of civilians. A report should be made of each civilian arrested for a military offense. Report of Incident (Form No. 2) and Report of Arrest (Form No. 3) may be used for this purpose with an appropriate notation under "Action taken"; for example, "Turned over to the U. S. Commissioner." If requested, or as part of an agreement with civil authorities, copies may be furnished to the local police.

g. Recording. All arrests are recorded, both on the desk sergeant's blotter and on Form No. 3 (Report of Arrest). The Report of Arrest is a basic record of the action taken by the military police. It must be accurate and must be filed for reference. The records of a case should follow in sequence from the original complaint to the final disposition after arrest and trial; or, in the case of arrests where a complaint and investigation have not been made, the records should include the arrest and the subsequent action. These records make it possible to compare the number of arrests with the number of complaints received, offenses committed, and investigations made.

h. Records of arrests. (1) Reports. (a) Report of Arrest (Form No. 3) is used to record the apprehension of a person charged with an offense for which punitive action is mandatory. This form is filled out by the arresting military policeman and is given to the desk sergeant. Two or more copies may be made for distribution by the records section to interested parties, as local conditions or regulations require.

(b) Report of the apprehension or surrender of an absentee is made on a separate record (Form No. 4), retained by the military police.

(2) Fingerprints. All persons arrested who have not been registered, as shown by Personal Identification Index Card (Form No. 23) file, will be fingerprinted on Personal Identification Fingerprint Card (Form No. 21). The Personal Identification Index Card file should always be available to the desk sergeant. Form No. 21, bearing the fingerprints, is protected from wear and tear and made available only to the proper records authority.

(3) Photographs. Like fingerprints, photographs may be taken in conjunction with the arrest of individuals for certain offenses prescribed by regulations.

(4) Individual's record of offenses. (a) Record of Offenses (Form No. 5) of each individual is used to—

1. Record all offenses committed by the individual.
2. Keep records on places frequented by soldiers.
3. Keep records on employees of places recorded in 2 above.

(b) At times it is advisable to file these cards under the heading of the crime or offense, as well as alphabetically.

i. Notice to commanding officer and others. In every case where an individual subject to the Articles of War and Army Regulations is arrested, a Report of Delinquency (Form No. 6) is forwarded by the provost marshal to the commanding officer of the delinquent's organization. In all cases of minor delinquencies normally handled under the 104th Article of War, reports affecting personnel stationed in any service command other than that in which the report originates are transmitted direct to the commanding officer of the delinquent's organization, through the commander of the post at which the organization is stationed. Reports of serious offenses and reports of all cases involving officers are transmitted to the offender's commanding general. If the address of the commanding general is unknown to the provost marshal under whom the report originates, the report will be forwarded to the commander of the post at which the offender is stationed for forwarding to the commanding general.

j. Disposition. The disposition should be entered on all records of the arrest. When the offenses reported on Form No. 6 are serious in nature, or the offense is a repetition of previous offenses, a report should be requested of the final action taken. This report may be accomplished by indorsement on the Report of Delinquency of action taken by the organization; or by the use of a simple disposition form giving the name of individual, charge, date of arrest, and space for final disposition. The Disposition of Delinquency Report (Form No. 7) is used when, after a reasonable period of time, the provost marshal has received no notification of final action taken.

8. INDEXING AND FILING OF COMPLAINTS, INVESTIGATIONS, AND ARRESTS. a. General. The Complaint Report, Investigation Report, Report of Incident, Report of Arrest, Personal Identification Fingerprint Card, and Record of Offenses are basic records. The Complaint Report (Form No. 1), or Report of Incident (Form No. 2), may be the initial or basic control record. Investigation determines either that the complaint is unfounded or that further action is required. If the complaint is unfounded, the Investigation Report is completed and the case closed; if an arrest is made, a Report of Arrest (Form No. 3) is filled out and any other pertinent papers, such as Statement Sheets or subsequent action sheets, are attached to the Complaint Report, together with the Investigation Report. After the arrest, a Report of Delinquency (Form No. 6) is forwarded to the commanding officer.

b. Case file. Each Complaint Report is filled out in duplicate and given a case number. The original is held at the record center until properly completed for file; the copy is given to the person assigned to the investigation. Upon completion of the investigation, the Investigation Report is submitted by the investigator to the provost marshal for approval. Upon approval, a copy of the Investigation Report is attached to the Complaint Report and filed in the case file, together with any other pertinent papers, such as a Report of Arrest, Report of Delinquency, etc. Files should be distinctly marked with the numbers of the cases filed therein.

c. Investigation index file. An investigation index file may be maintained. The index cards are filed by the name of the victim in an alphabetical file. An additional copy may be made and filed by location of offense, if desired.

d. Report of arrest file. Each report of arrest is filled out in duplicate and numbered with the case number. One copy is filed by number; the other copy is filed alphabetically by name of person arrested.

e. Absentees report file. Apprehension of Absentee records (Form No. 4) are filed in alphabetical order under the heading "Absentees."

f. Fingerprint file. For the filing of fingerprint records, see paragraph 22.

g. Record of offenses file. The record of offenses contains the complete offense record of each individual arrested. Records of offenses (Form No. 5) are filed in alphabetical order.

9. PROSECUTION RECORDS. If a person arrested is charged and brought to trial, the provost marshal makes the record of the case available to the trial judge advocate.

10. MILITARY POLICEMAN'S NOTEBOOK. All military policemen carry a notebook, which contains excerpts of regulations covering the military policeman's duties. A rubber stamp can be used to print such additional information as desired.

13. LOST, STOLEN, FOUND, OR RECOVERED PROPERTY. a. General.

(1) Complete records are kept of lost, stolen, found, or recovered property, both personal and Government, reported to the military police. For each item of lost or stolen property, a 5 x 8 card (Form No. 10) is prepared and cross-referenced by the number assigned the case. Property found, which had not been reported lost or stolen, and other property brought to the attention of the military police, are also recorded on this form.

(2) In many localities, pawnbrokers and second-hand dealers are required to keep property records on cards furnished by the law enforcement agencies. Contacts may be made with local police to check these records.

b. Description of property. It is important to obtain an accurate and complete description of property reported lost or stolen. Local regulations should specify the descriptive data which should be recorded for individual types of property. The following illustrates the types of descriptive information which should be recorded:

(1) Military property. In the description of all military property, both military and common nomenclature are used.

(2) Miscellaneous. Concerning other types of articles, such as typewriters, adding machines, radios, cameras, musical instruments, bicycles, and tools, always show the serial and model numbers, if available, as well as the kind of article, maker's name, color, initials, and other special identifying features.

c. Files maintained. (1) Property Reports (Form No. 10) are filed by type of article. Property bearing initials or inscriptions may be subdivided according to the first letter.

(2) When lost or stolen property is recovered or found by the military police, Form No. 10 is completed, the Receipt for Property (Form No. 11) is attached, and the records attached to the case history.

(3) Registration card. A registration card (Form No. 19) is issued for each vehicle authorized to operate on the reservation. For use as a temporary registration, the word "Temporary" is typed on this form, in addition to the expiration date. This form is made out in quadruplicate; where bristolboard is used, it is advisable to type the card in duplicate twice.

(4) Registration tag or marker. Each vehicle registered is required to display a tag or marker as prescribed by local regulations.

b. Filing registration records. (1) Applications for Auto Registration (Form No. 17) are completed in duplicate. The original is filed alphabetically by name of owner or owners; the duplicate may be filed by date of expiration of insurance. The alphabetical files may be divided into three groups: officers, enlisted men, and civilians.

(2) One copy of the registration card (Form No. 19) is given to the owner; the second copy is filed numerically by State license number; the third copy, alphabetically; the fourth copy, by post tag number. The segregation of registration cards into different classes may be facilitated by the use of colored cards, the colors being changed annually. Expired registration cards should be retained for at least 6 months to aid in checking re-registrations, nonregistrants, etc.
